After Thrice Threatening to Score at Start and Playing Penn Off Its Feet, Cornell Falls to Pieces

from the gridiron in the memain on the be learned. After a few minutes of play most of the contestants were encrusted with mud. In the third quarter it was hard to tell some of the men apart.

Just what Cornell might have done lege team, 12 to 6. Holy Cross out-had not its morale become impaired by played the Crimson and White in every blocked kick, which permitted Pennvania to score its first touchdown is rather an interesting problem for psychologists Until that punt was blocked early in the second period Cornell played like one of Cornell's great elevens. It had both the onlookers and the Penn players by the ears. The Ithauans rushed their rivals all over the field and thrice in the first period Hoffman had opportunities to score by drop kicking field goals. Once in that quarter Cornell got to Pann's seven yard post. Hoffman's first try for a field goal same right after the start. A series of line smashes, a ten yard forward pass from Nethercott to Colvin and a seventeen yard dash by Carry brought Cornell to Penn's 40 yard line. Hoffman tried a goal from forty-seven yards, but it was a sorry attempt and Bell fell on the ball for Penn, only to see his team lose the pisskin immediately afterward when Hoffman intercepted a forward bass at midfield.

Hoffman's second kicking attempt soon followed, after Cornell had carried on right into the shadow of the Penn goal its. A twenty-seven yard run aro posts. A twenty-seven yare run around the enemy left wing by Cross sent Cornell to the Quakers' 23 yard mark and Cross and Carry advanced the ball to the 19 yard post. There Penn held and Hoffman fell back to try a goal from twenty-seven yards. The ball was as heavy as lead and the soggy ground gave no rebound. The try provid an ve no rebound. The try proved an-her fizzle and went for a touchback. Many Stars for Winners.

It wasn't long after that that Cornell got the ball on Harris's recovery of a fumble by Straus, after a bad pass, on Penn's 23 yard mark. Hoffman and Carry smashed their way almost up to

The snow and cold had made the ground too hard and sreacherous and, fearing accidents, the committee decided not to allow the army officers to ride over it. The race will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock if the ground is in good enough condition.

Overhead the day was perfect, and to witness the event a big crowd turned out. Long before the race was cancelled the roads on F. Ambrose Clark's extate, where the dozen hunters were to finish their three mile cross country chase, was black with automobiles. In each was one or more soldiers from Camp Mills and Camp Upton, who were the guests of the North Shore colony at Thanksgiving dinners.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 29.—The East nosed out the West to-day when Syracuse triumphed over Nebraska by 10 to 9 in as thrilling a football combat as ever was staged on a Western gridiron.

Capt, Shaw of the Westerners is the saddest man in all Nebraska to-might, His failure to kick a goal following a touchdown in the last minute of play balked the Westerners in their bid to tie the score.

The Cornhuskers fought their way to a three point lead in the opening quarter. After an exchange of punts a fifteen yard openativ, a forward gass, Dobson to Hubka, for nine yards and an off tackle smash by Schellenberg put the ball within kicking distance, and Dobson dropped back to the 33 yard line and drop kicked a pretty field goal.

day morning swamped the soldiers' eleven from Fort Hancock at Ebbets eleven from Fort Hancock at Ebbets Field by 69 to 0.

Lieut Hayes of the Thirteenth Regiment, Brooklyn, and former star of Muhlenberg College, was the individual star of the contest. Besides scoring a touchdown and kicking nine goals from touchdown Hayes was his team's bigbest ground gainer. George Bechtold, Warren and Travers also played well for Hamilton. John Faber, at right end for Fort Hancock, was the only real football player on the Sandy Hook eleven.

George Bechtold started off the scoring soon after the opening whistle. After several line plunges by Hayes the ball on the next play Bechtold skirted left end for his team's first touchdown. Hayes kicked goal. Soon after this Warren after a fifteen yard run scored another touchdown. Toward the end of this period Hayes on fake kick formation made thirty-five yards around the end for another touchdown. Again he kicked goal.

Early in the second quarter after a series of fumbles by both sides Hamilton recovered the ball on Hancock's 25 yard line. On the next play Warren went over for a touchdown. This was all the scoring done in the first half. The lineup:

the battery of Navy rooters. He followed by kicking a goal.

The triumph keeps the Aviators with a clean slate and in line for the championship, which will be decided at Travers Island next Sunday. The Birdmen then will throw out skirmishing lines against the Fort Slocum eleven in the deciding till for the title.

Getting the jump on the Tars, the Long Island Escadrille, driven at top speed by Quarterback Raymond Watkins, the former Colgate star, twice battered the Sallors back over the goal line in the opening quarter. Clark went over the top for the first touchdown and Watkins catapuited across the dead line for the second. The Mineola quarterback kicked both goals from touchdown.

In the third and fourth quarters the Aviators railied and kept the play in Reserve territory a greater part of the time. Twice in the last five minutes of play the tars were smashed back. Three smashes at the line drove the tars back to their 7 yard line, where Jose Cox. the heavyweight pugitist, who played left tackle for the Reserves, amashed through and downed Clark in his tracks for a loss. It, was the final play of the game. Cox's tackle of Clark provented a Mineola touchdown and made up for the one that Cox let get through his side of the line in the first period.
